

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of abusing the public trust.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest, not their own self-serving agenda. Instead of something produced at their corporate office, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
